BEFORE YOU SET OUT

PREPARE FOR ANYTHING

The weather changes rapidly in alpine areas. River levels rise within minutes, bushfires spread quickly, and snowfall and blizzards occur any time of year. Mobile phone reception can be unreliable. Before heading out, make sure you are fully self-sufficient and that someone knows your plans.

Be prepared with:

- Wind and waterproof jackets
 - Warm clothing: hat, gloves and strong footwear
 - First aid kit for longer or more remote walks
 - Enough food and water for your walk
 - Compass and relevant topographical map for day hikes

SNOW SEASON

Hiking season in alpine areas is generally from November to May. Trails in the alps may be dangerous and difficult to navigate when snow covered and should only be attempted by those with alpine survival skills.

Always carry snow chains and check road conditions with VicRoads before driving in alpine areas. Many roads and tracks are closed during the snow season.

TOTAL FIRE BANS

Never light a fire during a Total Fire Ban. See cfa.vic.gov.au for daily updates.

LEAVE NO TRACE

Our region is sensitive to human presence. We are home to several endangered species, including platypus, mountain pygmy possums, bogong moth and alpine dingoes, as well as other rare flora and fauna.

Your behaviour has a direct impact on nature. When entering our natural environment, take out what you bring in and leave no trace.

MAPS AND NAVIGATION

The maps provided in this guide may not be suitable for navigating hiking trails within our National Parks. We strongly advise those completing day hikes to acquire the applicable Parks Victoria Track Notes and a topographical map, available at the Visitor Information Centres in Bright, Myrtleford and Mount Beauty.
